Say 'I do' at BAFTA

This is the highest season for wedding celebrations and we want to help you identify some of the hottest current trends, including catering, floral displays and photography.

195 Piccadilly is licensed for weddings and civil ceremonies in the stunning David Lean Room, the intimate Run Run Shaw and world-class screening room the Princess Anne Theatre. All spaces have their own features and styles to suit any number of different wedding themes and feels.

Perfectly located in the heart of the West End, St James' Church is on our doorstep and is a beautiful setting for a traditional ceremony.

Visit the church's website for more information:

A budding romance

Hayford & Rhodes are our fabulous florist here at 195 Piccadilly who design and deliver stunning flowers for weddings of all sizes across London and nationwide. From simple table centres to extravagant room transformations, the expert team go to great lengths to deliver creative solutions and dedicated personal service.

We asked Hayford & Rhodes to identify some of the hottest trends of 2010 in floral design:

'New vintage'

Brides are increasingly requesting detail and subtle glamour in their bridal flowers. Colours are feminine and strongly influenced by soft, antique tones. This vintage cake stand table centre design encapsulates the trend perfectly.

'Hollywood Glamour'

Arrangements are voluptuous and dramatic with increasing use of silver urns and candelabras to add a touch of sparkle and sophistication. Masses of big blowsy flowers such as peonies, roses and hydrangeas ooze style and glamour.

'Natural Romance'

Ultra feminine, loose and simple floral designs with a very pretty pink and candy pastel shades. The flowers have a country garden feel with an emphasis on fragrance. Using everyday items to display the flowers - such as jam jars, bottles and water jugs - accentuates the natural styling.

Capture the moment

Established in 2006 by Phil Ripley, Ripley Photography covers weddings and corporate events in London and the South East.

Phil Ripley documents each event with a combination of reportage and portrait photography. A mix of both styles works particularly well in wedding photography, capturing the moments, the celebrations, the laughter and more.

"Brides love our Queensberry albums and they are something to treasure for years to come" says Phil.

"We've recently introduced a digital package so that clients will always have their images on hand to share with their friends. We also include an iPhone slideshow with our albums. Being able to share their images is really important."
